Yardley-Wilburtha Bridge To Be Closed In 3 Months

The Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission yesterday irrevocably sealed the fate of the old Yardley - Wilburtha Bridge with an announcement that the bridge is "unsafe to continue in service indefinitely."

William R. Johnson, executive director of the commission, said this morning that the bridge is perfectly safe for the use through which it is being put at present, but that it would be closed as soon as the new Scudders Falls Bridge, 1.3 miles to the north, is opened. He said that he expected the new span to open for traffic in about three months.

"If the old bridge was unable to accommodate the 6,000 cars a day that travel over it, we'd close it immediately," Johnson said. The old bridge has been the object of some dispute between the commission and the Yardley Businessmen's Association. The association has demanded that the old bridge be kept open.

Johnson said that the commission keeps a guard at the old bridge 24 hours a day to make certain the six-ton limit for vehicles using the span is observed.

Cuba Begins Installing Coastal Guns

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI)—Cuba started installing coastal defense guns along the famed Malecon Sea Drive today and declared the area a "military zone."

The restricted area reaches from the junction of Galiano Street and the Malecon westward to the suburban Vedado location of the now abandoned United States Embassy building.

Army crews immediately started rolling heavy guns into the area and by 11 a.m. they had been emplaced for roughly a mile between Galiano Street and Maceo Park, the start of the Vedado suburb.

The Malecon overlooks the Gulf of Mexico along its approximately 10-mile expanse.

The Cuban cabinet blamed the Eisenhower administration for its break in relations with the U.S. and implied that things might improve under President-elect John F. Kennedy.

The cabinet issued the statement after an all-night session in which it decreed the death penalty for anti-Castro "terrorists" within 72 hours of their conviction.

The cabinet statement comprised the first formal reaction to the severing of diplomatic relations.

On the land price has been made, but that he had an agreement with the Fechtenburg agency.

The Middletown Township Planning Commission began clearing the way for the shopping center last night. At their meeting, the commissioners approved a tentative subdivision of the 78-acre property owned by the Fechtenburg agency on the west side of Route 413.

Lubin said no final settlement will be constructed on the property.

Want Department Store
"We're going to try to get a department store," he reported. The total number and type of establishments will depend on estimated population growth, he said. He pointed out that 25 acres is sufficient for a sizable center.

Lubin said he expects the supermarket to be the first of a group of "first class" stores that

CARPET FIRM FIRE RAGES FOUR HOURS

Causes $25,000 Damage

Fire broke out in the basement of the Towne Carpet and Furniture Company in Eddington early this morning, causing an estimated $25,000 damage before firemen from three companies in Bensalem Township subdued it after a four-hour battle.

Firemen from the Union, Cornwells and Newport Fire Company No. 1 were able to confine the blaze to the basement of the two-story building but not before it caused considerable damage to furniture stored there.

Alerted At 4 a.m.
Chief William Dettmer of the Newport Company, said the fire apparently started in an oil burner in the basement.

He said his company was alerted a few minutes after 4 a.m. and didn't return to the firehouse until 8:30 a.m.

He said that mattresses stacked one on top of the other hampered the firemen in extinguishing the flames.

"No sooner would we have one blaze out than another would start up somewhere else," he said. He estimated there were some 30 mattresses in all.

Dettmer said an examination of the burner revealed that the doors of the heater had been blown open from the inside.

The alarm was turned in by Sgt. Larry Michaels of the Bensalem Police Department.

A defect in the alarm system prevented the signal from going through to the Eddington Fire Company.

The building is owned by Paul Gravelle of 3600 Bound Brook Ave. in Treves. He formerly operated an auto-supply business where the Towne firm is located at 3462 Bristol Pike.

Pro-Western Government Installed In Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—The pro-Western government of Premier Prince Boun Oum was installed in office today by a saffron-robed Buddhist priest.

The quiet, simple ceremony was in sharp contrast to the reports of bitter fighting in provincial areas of this Communist-beleaguered kingdom.

The priest, chanting in age-old near-musical tones, administered the oath to the white-haired prince and his cabinet in a 15-minute ceremony in Sisaket Wat, a weather-beaten 13th century Buddhist temple located across from King Savang Vathana's Vientiane villa.

The tavern keeper, Herbert E. Cooperman, was held for further action and released on $500 bail by Justice of the Peace John Melvin of Falls.

Weatherman Sees Warming Trend
A slight warming trend was forecast by the weatherman this morning.

From a high thermometer mark today of about 35, temperatures are expected to rise into the low 40's sometime tomorrow. Some clouds will, however, hover overhead. Today's skies were expected to be fair.

An overnight low of about 25 is forecast. Yesterday's high was 30 degrees at noon. The low this morning was 20 at seven o'clock.

Langhorne Borough Proposes Joint Municipal Authority

Langhorne and Hulmeville Boroughs and Middletown Township are considering the creation of a joint municipal authority. The move would facilitate the construction of a sewage system to service the three communities.

The proposal came up at a council meeting in Langhorne last night when the council instructed its solicitor, Frederick Bebbington, to meet with solicitors from the two other communities to draw up plans for the project. Member George Allison, of the council's street committee, cited the need for a sewage system in the near future and told his fellow councilmen that the municipalities would have to band together "for their own protection."

County Aid
The councilmen agreed that eventually they would have to go to the county for help. The municipalities would be better assured of aid if they joined together, they said.

Council President Paul Ben-netch estimated that there would be a critical need for a sewage system in Langhorne within the next few years. Should a joint authority be formed, Ben-netch said he felt it would be at least a year or two before construction of a system would begin.

Close to 400 homes and businesses in the Langhorne area would be serviced by the system Ben-netch said.

The boroughs of Pennell and Langhorne Manor have been also invited to participate in a joint merger, Ben-netch said.

Joint Venture
At present Pennell Borough is completing plans for the construction of its own sewage system. Last night, however, Langhorne councilmen felt that it would be some time before Pennell could begin constructing its own system and there would still be time for Pennell to join with the rest of the surrounding communities in a joint venture.

Bebbington said that an authority could be established very quickly but advised that any merger be taken under study first. Bebbington said that each mun-

Parents Face Fines If Minors Buy Beer

Parents in Falls Township may face a fine if their minor children purchase beer or liquor anywhere in the township, Milton Berkes, chairman of the township supervisors, said today.

Berkes said that he has asked Solicitor William Heffner to draw up an ordinance making such fines possible, if the ordinance is legal.

The suggestion, Berkes said, was the result of the arrest of the owner of a tavern on Newportville Road on a charge of selling beer to a 19-year-old boy Saturday morning.

The tavern keeper, Herbert E. Cooperman, was held for further action and released on $500 bail by Justice of the Peace John Melvin of Falls.

Good Evening!

Groundhog Day four weeks from today.

Then six more weeks of what we've been having at the most. Winter moving along.

President Eisenhower bluntly warns Cuba to keep hands off Guantanamo and he doesn't mince any words about it.

Good. We can't under any circumstance permit this character Fidel and his alleged government of hoodlums imperil our great naval base in the Caribbean. But, you know, we have a hunch that we might just have to show Castro the U. S. means what it says.

We see where Dr. Joe Still, fired as director of the County Health Department, loses his suit to get his job back.

Rather difficult to understand how in the world he could have won. A sad day it will be, indeed, when government is barred from making changes in these sort of agencies when it feels the changes are in the best interests of the people who foot the bills.

And Leland Godwin, of Morrisville, retires after 49 years with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, most of 'em as yardmaster. That's a long time of loyal and good service to an organization and we hope he enjoys his retirement for the next 49.

We harbor a real faint yearning that when we've been around that long, somebody thinks of giving us a watch. Initials and all the trimmings.

Weather on the more moderate side.

Be patient, like we said. Fair and warmer tomorrow and the next day and, if it holds, anybody want to bet there won't be some ultra-early pre-spring work-outs on the fairways?

Trouble with people is that they won't admit their faults. We'd admit ours—if we had any.

The human mind: A wonderful device which starts working the minute you are born and never stops until you stand up to speak.

Work and save, young man, and some day you'll have enough to divide with those who don't.

Take it easy with the driving.

Boro Golf Course Again 'Stymied'

The finance committee of Bristol Borough Council last night threw another stumbling block in the way of the golf course that has been proposed for the borough.

The committee asked Seymour Silverman of the 54-Par Corp., the organization that hopes to build the course, to submit plans showing exactly where the course would be constructed.

Silverman has submitted a bid proposing to lease 50 acres of the borough's 100-acre well field site at the intersections of Routes 13 and 413 for the course, which will be 18 par three holes on a daily fee basis. His bid is for an annual rental of $5,000 for the 50 acres.

A large shopping center — "the best there is," according to a Philadelphia developer, is being envisioned for a 25-acre tract on the west side of Route 413, off Route 1, Middletown Township.

Michael Lubin, a developer, said he has made a $25,000 deposit on the land owned by the Richard W. Fechtenburg realty firm, and expects to start building the first store, an Acme Supermarket "in about a year."

Lubin said he expects the supermarket to be the first of a group of "first class" stores that

Commissioners Refer Hartley To Board On Park Land

State To Give Boundaries Of Bucks Park

Boundaries for the new regional State Park on Tohickon Creek in northern Bucks County will be unveiled by the state Department of Forests and Waters at 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 3, at a public meeting in the Palisades School, Kintnersville.

In calling the meeting, Secretary of Forests and Waters Maurice K. Goddard invited all interested persons to attend, particularly residents of Haycock, Bedminster, East Rockhill, and Nockamixon Townships where land will be purchased for the new park. The General State Authority will start buying the land with $1,000,000 already allocated by the legislature. GSA Executive Director A. J. Caruso will attend the meeting along with Goddard and other officials.

Goddard said the meeting is being held "to give the affected land-owners every pertinent fact we can regarding the properties to be purchased and acquisition procedures."

At a meeting late last year in New Hope, Goddard revealed that the new park, part of a series of State Parks to serve the metropolitan area in Southeastern Pennsylvania, will include a man-made lake approximately seven miles long developed for swimming, boating, fishing, and most other forms of outdoor recreation. He stated that the reservoir also will be used for water supply some time in the future. It is part of an over-all development plan for the Delaware River Basin.

Yardley

is opened. The reasons are:

- 1 - The foundations are rotted;
- 2 - There has been breakage in the structure and it has been impossible to determine the exact location of the breakage;
- 3 - The Bailey Bridge components must come down to conform with the restrictions placed in the permit issued to the commission by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers;
- 4 - That portion of the span nearest the New Jersey side is going to have to come down at a later date anyway to permit space for the construction by the New Jersey State Highway Department for the extension of Route 29.

The commission had, at a previous meeting, halted construction at the Scudders Falls site until spring. The demolition of the old bridge was to have started with the opening of the new span. Johnson said the highway department may not complete approaches to the Scudders Falls bridge until mid-April. The $2,300,000 bridge itself was finished more than a year ago.

The engineers' report was based on recommendations made by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers on the life span of the Bailey Bridge sections of the old bridge. The Bailey sections were installed on the bridge after Hurricane Hazel washed away a 470-foot section of the span in 1955.

Johnson said the army recommendations put the life span of the Bailey Bridge sections at two years. He said that the army felt that in the more than five years since the Bailey sections were installed, some of the bolts holding the components together may have sheared off or been bent.

Remain In Havana

11 Winding Up U.S. Embassy Affairs

HAVANA (UPI)—U.S. Charge d'Affaires Daniel F. Braddock and 10 other U.S. embassy officials remained in Havana today to complete details of the diplomatic break with Cuba and place American interests here in the hands of the Swiss Embassy.

The Stars and Stripes were lowered from the multi-million dollar skyscraper embassy building for the last time yesterday, giving way today to the national flag of Switzerland—a white cross on a red field.

The 11 U.S. officials will help those Americans who want to get out of Cuba and then go back to the mainland themselves in a few days.

Sixty-one members of the U.S. Embassy staff and three dependents sailed for West Palm Beach, Fla. aboard a railroad car ferry last night, well within the original 49-hour deadline set by the Castro government Tuesday.

Most had given up their seats in a chartered plane, sent here from Miami yesterday, to 69 Cubans anxiously waiting at the airport for transportation to the United States. The ferry, the City of New Orleans, had a normal passenger capacity of 12-six two-passenger staterooms. Cots were set up to accommodate the extra passengers during the 250-mile voyage.

Tension increased noticeably in already jittery Havana in the wake of the break in relations by the United States. The pro-government press and radio whipped up the "hate-America" campaign, describing Washington's action as "proof" of Premier Fidel Castro's charges that the United States was preparing an armed invasion "within a matter of hours."

Maid Finds Dead Woman

A woman identified only as Catherine Cryder, Croydon, was found dead in a Philadelphia hotel yesterday, a plastic bag over her head, police reported today. The bag was fastened by a silk stocking tied around the woman's neck.

Police said the body was found by a maid last night during a check of a two - room suite at the Penn - Retta Hotel, 2048 Chestnut St. They said the dead woman had registered at the hotel Tuesday night.

Det. Edward Wright, of Philadelphia's Central Detective Division, said no identification was found in the woman's purse. He said she had registered at the hotel as Catherine Cryder.

The detective said the woman was a blonde, about 45 years old. The police listed the death as a probable suicide pending a medical examination.

Better Clean Sidewalks

Bristol Township Manager Richard J. Bowen today issued a "final warning" to township home owners to clean the snow and ice from their sidewalks.

The Manager said that "starting immediately" a township ordinance which requires that sidewalks be kept clean will be strictly enforced. He said the ordinance calls for fines against those who disobey it.

Bowen said the principal danger created by the slippery sidewalks is that pedestrians, particularly school children, are forced to walk in the streets, creating more than a normal traffic problem.

'Extra Effort' Costs Trucker More In Fines

Trying to avoid paying an overweight truck fine in Middletown Township yesterday cost the truck owner $250 in extra fines and costs. The fines were levied by William Oettinger, Middletown Township Justice of the Peace.

The owner, Raymond B. Long, of Tylerport, not only had to pay the $60 overweight charge, but paid fines against his driver, John Hinkle, of Richlandtown.

Hinkle's fines were $100 for failure to go to the weight scales set up along the Superhighway by Middletown police, $50 for dumping part of his load at an unauthorized location, and $50 for carrying an obstructed license plate on his vehicle.

When Hinkle dumped part of his load of sand on private property, his truck got stuck and had to be towed to the scales. The towing fee was $26. Costs levied by Oettinger were $24.

Hinkle was driving west on the highway bound for the turnpike when he saw the weighing station near Highland Ave. and decided to avoid risking the overweight fine.

He drove his truck to the Old Lincoln Highway property of Mrs. Emily Brown, where he dumped about 1,000 pounds of his load, according to Middletown police, who apprehended him at that point.

Two Act On Protests By Owners

Vincent H. Hartley, president of the Bristol Township Board of Commissioners, said this morning he is "not sure how much real cooperation" he got from the Bucks County Commissioners when he asked them this week to prevent the acquisition of privately owned properties in the township for the proposed new Mill Creek Valley Park.

Hartley said he and township Commissioner Carl F. Vetter, in whose ward most of the properties under discussion are located, were told that the county commissioners were "sympathetic to the proposal" not to touch the properties.

He added, however, that the county commissioners took no positive action to prevent the acquisitions by the county park board. Instead, he said, the county commissioners simply referred him back to the county park board.

Approved Bond Issue

The county commissioners earlier this year had approved a $1,500,000 bond issue so that the park board could acquire the properties.

Hartley said he did as the county commissioners suggested and wrote to Dr. Wilson McNeary, chairman of the park board, and asked for a meeting "to see if some solution to the problem could be worked out." He said there has not yet been time for Dr. McNeary to answer his letter.

Hartley said he and Vetter went to the county commissioners after "strong protests" from property owners who don't want to sell the land the park board wants to buy.

The park board had indicated late last year that it would condemn properties it could not acquire otherwise.

Hartley said Vetter and other township commissioners have been "swamped" with requests from property owners who want the park land acquisitions blocked. He said the township authorities "will do everything we can to help these people."

Any meeting between township officials and the park board will be announced as soon as a date is set, Hartley concluded.

LPRA, Firm Settle Suit

A suit by Recreational Foods, Inc., against the Levittown Public Recreation Association for damages allegedly due the corporation when it was not able to operate refreshment stands in the Levittown swimming pools in 1957 and 1958 was settled between the two parties yesterday, after a day in court.

Terms of the settlement were not disclosed, Garnett Morris and Edwin M. Borman, owners of Recreational Foods, which operated the stands in 1955 and 1956, said the L.P.R.A. had denied them the right to renew their contract for an additional two years.

They said they were entitled to the two years' profits they lost. Testifying with the stand operators were their accountant, Jules Sulzer.

The settlement was made after Morris and Borman had presented their case to a jury and Judge Lawrence A. Monroe. Judge Monroe declared a mistrial, to end the trial and the jury was dismissed.

acres he wants to lease.

Silverman stated last night that he hopes to have the plans ready for the next meeting of borough council, which will be Monday, although he is not sure whether they can be ready in time.

Several councilmen indicated that the council at that meeting probably will defer even further definite action on the bid, although it will be legally empowered to either accept or reject it. Burgess Anthony R. Niccoletti already has stated that he will veto any ordinance accepting the bid or the grounds that the $5,000 is not adequate rental.

The finance committee last night also invited Robert W. Pierson, executive director of the Bucks County Park Board, to attend the next committee meeting. Pierson has objected to any private operation of the borough-owned well fields.

Reportedly, he is planning to suggest a publicly financed and operated golf course on the same site.

Building Trades Miffed

AFL-CIO To Support Kennedy Program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The AFL-CIO high command was expected today to throw organized labor's weight behind President-elect John F. Kennedy's five-point program of priority legislation.

Members of the AFL-CIO's Executive Council assembled for a special session to mobilize support from every AFL-CIO union for Kennedy's immediate goals.

Building trades leaders were reported somewhat miffed because Kennedy's emphasis on a minimum wage hike, help for depressed areas, medical care for the aged under Social Security, aid to education and housing legislation omits immediate attention to their pet project — a common sites picketing bill.

Meany Proposes Backing

But George Meany, AFL-CIO president and a strong backer of Kennedy during the political campaign, appeared certain to win approval for his proposal to get behind the Kennedy program now.

The 27-man council's decision was sure to emphasize Meany's contention that the number one task before the nation is to put the unemployed back to work.

Federal aid for school construction, programs to stimulate housing and assistance to economically distressed areas long have been advocated by the AFL-CIO to pull the country from a recession.

Do you think local high school sports activities should be divided into two divisions, one for large schools, the other for small schools?

JOSEPH CHIOVITT, 424 Pine-wood Drive, Levittown, taxi cab driver.

There should be two leagues, one for big schools and one for smaller schools. The situation at Neshaminy High School, which has the largest student capacity in Lower Bucks, is an example of what can happen without divisions. Neshaminy has a larger and better choice of players and coaches. The smaller schools don't have this advantage, particularly in football. It should be done, even if traditional games have to be eliminated. It's silly to play ball when there's no competition.

GUNNERY SGT. JOHN H. MARTINEZ, USMC, 11 Holly Drive, Levittown.

I'm in favor of divisions. The larger schools have a bigger area and larger number of players from which to draw their teams. Small schools don't have this chance. We had a two-division system in San Antonio, Texas, where I was raised and it worked very well. The problem of breaking up traditional rivalries would work itself out. Such a system would give all schools more chances to win ball games and the small schools wouldn't get beat all the time.

ROBERT WATSON, 35 Parkside Circle, Plumridge, Levittown, salesman.

There should be two divisions. Larger schools have a larger student drawing capacity, giving them a better chance to build a good team. Some arrangements could be made when a traditional rivalry situation exists. The playing of pushover games might then be eliminated and all teams would be in more of a competitive situation.

GEORGE WALTON, 38 Trail Road, Twin Oaks, Levittown, sales representative.

A two-division set-up would keep schools with large enrollments together and enable more teams to win more often. It would also help to keep the small school's morale up, after they've been used as a door mat for so long. A similar situation exists in Philadelphia where some schools are thinking of eliminating league ball. It's up to the schools to work something out.

ROBERT HEIST, 10 Kindle Lane, Kenwood, Levittown.

I'm certainly in favor of establishing two divisions. The large schools have more applicants for the various teams than small schools, just because of their size. They often get better players because they've got a wider selection. The schools might have to sacrifice some of their traditional rivalries, but it would be worth it to see sports of a more nearly competitive nature. The fans would be happier, too.

Educational Viewpoints

By
DR. EVERETT A. McDONALD, JR.

Another section of the Language Arts program is "handwriting." As every parent knows, the child is the original do-it-yourself man. Growth is what he is after. Not just growth in size, but growth in what he can do and how many times he sees it in print or has Mother name it for him, there is nothing that quite compares to the moment when he writes his own name all by himself in enormous, straggly, beautiful letters.

It's another key to the kingdom of growing up and he savors it to the full. Ask the first-grade teachers who get these six-year-old eager beavers, full of gusto and drive to learn the correct way of making letters and producing good writing. They will tell you that youngsters practice at this age endlessly and with fervor their "manuscript writing," which consists mainly of circles (o's) and straight lines (l's). The child wants his writing to be perfect, and he works hard at perfection all through the first grade and on into the second.

In third grade, there is another exciting breakthrough. This is the time when most schools help him to make the change over to cursive writing, thus enabling him to master the mystery of the writing adults use. Now he's really living.

In these early grades, the teacher gives your child plenty of opportunities to practice writing words that have real meaning for him. On a visit to school, you might find him labeling classroom equipment, recording weather data, listing absentees, needed materials for a project, or directions for making a classroom mural.

The teacher will work constantly with him to improve these elements of his writing: shape, size, space, and slant. In the later grades, he'll work for speed. In the beginning he will probably write on the chalkboard or an unlined paper with crayons or crayon pencils. For most children, these give way to regular pencils in the third and fourth grades, while pen and ink are most often used in grades five and six.

Remember that muscular coordination will determine how well and how soon your child can tackle writing successfully. When he enters school, his small wrist and arm muscles are not so well developed as the larger muscles, and he needs space and materials to "spread out" in his writing. You can help him develop this kind of coordination before he goes to school with activities, work with clay, use of scissors and crayons, throwing and catching a ball.

As youngsters progress through the grades, they find many ways to practice their handwriting—in letters to pen pals in other cities or countries, notes to thank class visitors or to seek information from local firms or civic leaders. They pen invitations to parents and speakers for special programs, make written reports on books read, summarize science or social studies research, create original poems and fiction.

The parents of a southpaw will be glad to hear that nowadays his teacher knows a great deal about his special problems in learning to write.

For example, she may encourage him to continue manuscriptwriting indefinitely because it is easier for him. Because he tends to hold his hand in an "upside-down" position to avoid smearing what he has written, she may suggest a pencil with a slightly harder lead that does not smear so easily. For the same reason, she may encourage him to use a good nonskip ballpoint pen.

The parents of "lefties" will want to work along with the teacher to discover her methods for teaching left-handed pupils how to place the paper, how to grasp pen or pencil, how to develop a natural-feeling slant.

There are other points about the school's teaching of handwriting that parents may not realize for example, that manuscript writing is not a "baby" method of writing, but a very useful skill. In fact, it is better for maps, signs, labels, note-taking, and sometimes outlining. Your child, no matter which hand he uses, may not be ready to switch over to cursive as quickly as some of his classmates. If he is comfortable using manuscript writing, let him go on with it for a while. Most teachers feel it will not hold him back or hamper his speed.

Another thing to remember, especially in the early grades, is that children are impatient, imaginative souls. Sometimes their thoughts soar way ahead of their ability to write them down. That's why the teacher is very patient about misspelled words and wrong usage in the child's early usage of creative writing. She will be helping him right along to increase his accuracy without clipping the wings of his imagination.

What can parents do to help? Show that you think legible, neat writing is important by writing that way yourself—even in quick notes. Your handwriting may be no thing of beauty, but anyone who can button buttons and hammer nails can write legibly.

Give him opportunities to use this skill at home with handwritten thank-you notes, invitations to his friends to visit, letters to friends and relatives, his own greeting cards and valentines to address.

Study the written papers he brings home and comment favorably on how he's improving (if he is) or discuss with him ways he can improve. For example, if he's a speed artist, you might suggest he slow down a bit, at least on second drafts, and take time to proofread the finished product.

See that he does his writing in a good setting—on a smooth, well-lighted surface with suitable paper, sharpened pencils, or a good pen.

In the early grades, a copy of the manuscript alphabet is always in plain view of the children. Sometimes each child gets one of these for use at home, too. If not, you might ask the teacher to help you make one.

And a special tip for parents of southpaws: authorities have found that all children do more and better creative writing by using a typewriter, but for the "lefties" typewriter skills are a special boon in creative writing.

Enough Funds On Hand Say Officials

The Morrisville School Authority last night awarded contracts totalling $588,390 for the reconstruction of the fire-damaged Robert Morris High School into the Manoah R. Reiter Elementary School.

General contract for $465,102 was awarded to G. H. Evans Corporation, 445 Mill Road, Andalusia; contract for electrical work in the building for $44,660 went to J. L. McGee, Oreland; heating contract, for $39,295, went to C. H. Knecht, Camder; and the contract for plumbing work, for $39,333, was awarded to Hirsch, Arkin and Pinehurst, Philadelphia.

Dr. Paul Phillips, superintendent of Morrisville Schools, said this morning that money left from the original $530,000 bond issue, plus the insurance settlement of $145,000 for fire damage, will be enough to cover costs of the reconstruction.

July 26 Fire

The school was originally to have opened as an elementary school last September. However, a fire on July 26 damaged the building so severely that new plans and bids had to be drawn. The plans then had to be submitted to state authorities for official approval.

Dr. Phillips said that the School Authority had available for construction funds totalling $599,000, about $10,000 above the estimated costs. The finished building, which officials hope to begin using in September, will have 14 classrooms, a Kindergarten, multi-purpose room, maintenance office and garage.

"The money we have on hand is expected to cover everything, unless something unforeseen develops," Dr. Phillips said.

Dr. Phillips pointed out that in awarding the contracts, the school authority had cut out everything but the bare necessities. Taken out of the original plans were drapes, venetian blinds, bleachers in the multi-purpose room and folding chairs, which were also to have been used in the multi-purpose room.

The speakers for the evening will be C. O. Williams, assistant to the President for Special Services of The Pennsylvania State University, and Taylor R. Kirby, Guidance Counselor, Pennsbury High School.

The topic for the evening will be "What are Colleges Requiring of Students - How is Pennsbury Meeting these Requirements".

Family Night Planners

The Womens Society of Christian Service, Morrisville Methodist Church, are planning a Family Night to be held later this month. The night will feature a covered dish supper. Making plans for the event are (from left) Mrs. Harold Elhoff, Mrs. Lois Hazen, chairman; and Mrs. William Fisher.

Morrisville Teachers To Host NEA Head

Miss Clarice Kline, president of the National Education Association, will speak at a meeting of the Morrisville Education Association Monday at 8 p.m. in the Morrisville High School.

Miss Kline, who is head of the social studies department at Wausau High School, Wisconsin, will talk on her four basic beliefs, that teachers "must like to teach, must realize they are trained to teach, must have a strong commitment to public education and must feel a real, individual responsibility toward the teaching profession."

First School

Miss Kline was chairman of the faculty committee planning academic classrooms for the new high school at Wausau which she has described the "first school in the country to be built according to specifications made by the teachers themselves."

She is also instructor in special methods for the teaching of social studies in secondary schools at Carroll College, has taken a year's leave of absence for her tenure as NEA president. She also is a member of Delta Kappa Gamma, past president of the Wisconsin Education Association and past matron of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Guest List

Margaret Watkins, program chairman of the Morrisville Education Association, announced guests invited to attend the meeting include G. Baker Thompson, president of the Pennsylvania Education Association; E. Ray Shenk, president of Pennsylvania Classroom Teachers; the Morrisville Board of Education and School Authority, members of the Bucks County Education Association executive board and officials of the Pennsbury, Bristol and Delhaas school systems.

Board Halts Pizza Move

Carl's Tomato Pies, a Morrisville pizza parlor, will delay a planned move, it has been ruled by the borough's Board of Health.

Carl Maruca, proprietor of the business at 410 South Pennsylvania Ave., was planning to move his business a few doors down the street to 419 South Pennsylvania Ave. The Board of Health ruled against the move because there is no sewer hook-up at 418.

The board stated Maruca will not be able to make the move until the place to which he is planning to move is hooked-up. Both stores are owned by Albert Greco.

Board of Health officials said Maruca did not say whether or not he will make the proposed hook-up with borough sewer lines.

Legion Units Seek Clothing

Yardley's Knowles-Doyle Post 317, American Legion, and its auxiliary have begun rehabilitation projects at Perry Point Hospital, Maryland.

The two units are gathering men's clothing, new or used garments in good condition, and forwarding them to the hospital. Persons wishing to donate any items should contact Charles A. McCarthy or Mrs. Harry Glatz, rehabilitation chairmen, for the two units.

Before the Christmas holiday hospitals helped by the Yardley groups included Valley Forge, Philadelphia Veterans' and Coatesville. The legion also held a coffee hour at the Valley Forge Hospital.

The legion and its auxiliary also arranged for every serviceman and woman from the Yardley-Lower Makefield area to receive a box of candy for the holiday. These gifts were sent to all parts of the country, according to a report by the chairmen.

Miss Helen B. McCarthy is welfare chairman of the auxiliary.

Moslem Women Cry Guest Coming From Malta

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI)—The battle cry of Moslem women in the Casbah raised fears today of violent opposition to President Charles de Gaulle's Algeria referendum starting tomorrow.

Despite around-the-clock military patrols ringing the Casbah, scores of Moslem women began wailing the traditional "yoo-yoo-yoo" battle cry just before last midnight.

This was the same cry that inspired thousands of Moslems in clashes with troops and Europeans during De Gaulle's visit last month.

Voting on De Gaulle's plan for a semi-independent Algerian republic will begin tomorrow in the back country and will continue through Jan. 8 when the principal cities will cast ballots.

The FLN Algerian rebel organization, some elements of the French army and rightist European settlers oppose the referendum. The FLN wants full independence, while the army elements and settlers oppose any lessening of ties between France and its North African territory.

Tension was high in all key cities despite concentrations of tens of thousands of French troops in potential trouble spots. About 25,000 troops were camped in Algiers.

Miss Maria Delores Micallef, headmistress of the Girls Grammar School at Gozo, Malta, will visit Pennsylvania Schools for a month. She will arrive tomorrow.

Miss Micallef will tour the schools to observe teaching on the secondary level. She will visit at the Pennsylvania and Charles H. Boehm High Schools, Medill Bair and William Penn Junior High Schools.

Accommodations for Miss Micallef are being made by Mrs. Henry Hoffmeister, vice president of the secondary PTA, assisted by Mrs. Harold S. Carlsen and Mrs. McKendree Scott.

Arrangements for her visit to the area were made through the Department of Public Instruction in Harrisburg. Miss Micallef is in the U.S. in connection with the International Teacher Development Program.

Eight Perish In House Fire

LYNN, Mass. (UPI) — Eight persons—a mother and seven children—perished in a house fire today.

The dead included Mrs. Ann Amerault, 23, and six of her seven children. The fire also claimed the life of the children's 4-month-old cousin, Barbara Jean Hollingsworth.

Seven other persons, including five children, fled the pre-dawn fire in the two-family house.

The dead Amerault children were Michael, 8, Shirley Ann, 7, Donald Jr., 6, Robert, 4, Kathy, 2, and Barbara Jean, 1.

Donald Amerault, husband of the dead woman, tossed their youngest child, 4-month-old Dawn Marie, to safety from a second floor porch into the arms of a neighbor.

Philly Contends Reading Makes Profit On Route

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The City of Philadelphia argued before the Interstate Commerce Commission here yesterday that despite the Reading Railroad's contention it loses on train service between Bethlehem, Pa., and Philadelphia, it makes a $3,000 a year profit.

City Solicitor David Berger asked the commission to refuse the railroad's proposal to substitute buses for 32 miles of the route between the cities.

The railroad wants to run buses from Bethlehem to Lansdale where the passengers would then transfer to trains the rest of the way to Philadelphia.

Mom Spared In Slaying Of Love Rival

COLUMBUS (UPI) — Gov. Michael V. DiSalle today spared Mrs. Edythe Klumpp from the electric chair for the slaying of her love rival.

The governor said, after Mrs. Klumpp took a truth serum test, he was convinced of the truth of her story that her lover, William Bergen, accidentally fired the shot which the state said killed Mrs. Louise Bergen. Bergen lives in Arlington, Va.

DiSalle said, however, he felt the shooting was accidental and that Mrs. Bergen died from an injury received when her head struck the pavement as Bergen pulled her from a car. Mrs. Bergen was shot in her car during an argument with Bergen and Mrs. Klumpp.

The governor, bleary eyed after studying the case day and night for more than a week, announced shortly after midnight he was reducing the Cincinnati woman's sentence "at least for the time being" to life.

Hamilton County Prosecutor C. Watson Hover, who handled the prosecution, immediately disagreed with the governor's action.

Hover said if DiSalle felt Mrs. Bergen's death was an accident, the governor should pardon Mrs. Klumpp instead of allowing her to stay in prison for 20 years. Persons serving a life term for first degree murder, which is now Mrs. Klumpp's sentence, are eligible for parole consideration after 20 years.

DiSalle said he hoped "there eventually will be complete justice done in this case."

Beverly Gets Permission To Sing At Club If—

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Eighteen-year-old Beverly Aadland, the last girl friend of the late Errol Flynn, has received court permission to sing tonight in an Ohio night club—if:

- She doesn't sing off-color songs;
- Doesn't tell risqué jokes;
- Doesn't "expose too much of her torso";
- Doesn't drink liquor;
- Doesn't accept dates;
- Doesn't attend parties;

—And doesn't associate with persons drinking intoxicants.

Superior Judge Clyde C. Triplet made the ruling yesterday in giving Miss Aadland permission to continue her eastern night club tour.

Miss Aadland was made a ward of the court last spring after she accidentally fatally shot actor William Stanciu, 21, in her Hollywood apartment while they struggled for a gun.
